39. (1) When a citizen of Kenya has contracted a marriage outside Kenya, otherwise than under section 24, either spouse may apply to the Director for the registration of that marriage under this Act and the Director, if satisfied that the marriage should be recognized as valid under section 29, shall register the marriage.

(2) The Director may, for the purpose of registration under subsection (1), accept as evidence of a marriage contracted in a foreign country a marriage certificate issued in that country or such other evidence as he or she may consider sufficient; and where a certificate is not in English it shall be accompanied by a translation into English certified to be correct by a consular officer or notary public or other approved official.

Copies of decrees of

40. A court which grants a decree of annulment or divorce shall forthwith send one annulment and divorce to be sent to Director.

certified copy of the decree to the Director for registration.

Registration of foreign annulments and divorces.

41. (1) Where a marriage contracted in Kenya is annulled or dissolved by the decree of a foreign court, or there is a declaration to that effect, either of the parties may apply for the registration of that decree or declaration to the Chief Registrar who, if satisfied that the decree or declaration is one which should be recognized as effective under section 62 or 63, shall thereupon register the decree or declaration.

(2) An application under this section shall be accompanied by—

- (a) a copy of the decree or declaration and if it is not in English, a translation thereof into English certified to be a correct translation of the original by a consular officer or notary public or such other person as the Director may, in writing approve; and
- (b) a statutory declaration by a legal practitioner with knowledge of the law applicable in the country concerned stating that the decree or declaration would be effective in that country and, if necessary setting out the grounds upon which the foreign court was alleged to have jurisdiction.

Endorsement of marriage registers.

42. (1) Where a marriage has been converted under section 5, the Director shall, on receipt of a copy of the declaration made under that section, cause the fact to be recorded on the entry in the register of marriages relating to that marriage together with a reference which would enable the declaration to be traced.

(2) Where a decree of annulment or of divorce wherever granted, has determined a marriage or purported marriage contracted in Kenya and has been registered in accordance with the provisions of this Act or any written law in force before the commencement of this Act, the Director shall, on registering the decree, cause the entry in the register of marriages relating to that marriage to be marked with the word “Determined” and a reference to the proceedings in which the decree was granted.

Correction of errors.

43. The Director, or a registrar authorized by him or her, may correct any error or omission in a register or in a marriage certificate, but no correction shall render what was written illegible, and the signature of the Director or of the registrar and the date of the correction shall be written thereunder.

Power of Cabinet Secretary to restrict registration.

44. The Cabinet Secretary may, if he or she considers that adequate facilities for registration of marriages contracted under customary law do not exist in any particular registration area, by notice in the Gazette, suspend the provisions of this Act relating to the registration of such marriages, in relation to that registration area.

Evidence of marriage.

45. The following documents shall be admissible in evidence without proof in any court or before any person having by law or consent of parties authority to receive evidence and shall be prima facie evidence of the facts recorded—

- (a) a marriage certificate issued under this Act or any other written law;
- (b) a copy of a marriage certificate referred to under paragraph (a) certified as a true copy by the registrar having custody of the original;
- (c) an entry in any register of marriages kept under this Act or any other written law;
- (d) a copy of an entry in any register referred to under paragraph (c) purporting to be certified under the seal of the Director, or the signature of the county registrar having custody of the register, to be a true copy;
- (e) an entry made in any register of marriages before the date of commencement of this Act by the proper authority of the Khoja Shia Ith`nasheri, the Shia Imam/ Ismailis, or the Bohra community, or a copy of any such entry certified by the proper officer of that authority to be a true copy; and
- (f) in relation to a marriage celebrated in a place of worship at a time when the official registration of that marriage was not required, an entry in any register of marriages kept by the proper authority of the faith concerned or a copy of any such entry sealed with the seal, if any, of that authority and certified under the hand of the registrar or other proper officer of that authority to be a true copy.

PART IV—MATRIMONIAL RIGHTS, LIABILITIES AND STATUS

Presumption of spouse's authority to

46. (1) Subject to subsections (2) , (3), and (4) either spouse is presumed to have authority to pledge the other spouse's credit, or to borrow money in his or her name, pledge the other spouse's credit, etc.

or to use any of his or her money which is in his or her possession or under his or her control, or to convert his or her movable property into money, and use it, so far as that credit or money is required or used for the purchase of necessaries for himself or herself and any children of the marriage, and so far as is reasonable having regard to the other spouse's means and way of life.

- (2) Authority under subsection (1) shall not be presumed unless—
 - (a) the spouses are living together; or
 - (b) the spouses are separated under an agreement which provides that either spouse shall pay maintenance to the other and the spouse required to pay maintenance has failed to comply with that agreement, or
 - (c) either spouse has deserted the other.
- (3) Notwithstanding subsection (1) and (2) authority shall not be presumed if it is proved that a spouse is living openly in an adulterous association.
- (4) A presumption under this section may be rebutted by evidence—
 - (a) that a spouse at the material time was receiving a sufficient allowance or sufficient maintenance or had sufficient means of her own; or
 - (b) that a spouse at the material time had a sufficient quantity of those necessaries; or
 - (c) that a spouse has acted extravagantly having regard to the other spouse's means and it is immaterial that the person giving credit or lending money was unaware of the existence of that evidence.

Husband and wife and the law of tort.

- 47. Notwithstanding the provisions of any other written law—
- (a) no spouse shall be liable for the torts of the other spouse by reason only of his or her being her or his spouse; and
 - (b) spouses shall have the same liability in tort towards each other as if they were unmarried; and
 - (c) neither spouse shall be entitled to claim, in any action resulting from a negligent act, omission or breach of duty, which causes loss of the companionship of the other, or damages in respect of that loss.

Agreement to live apart.

- 48. The parties to a marriage may agree to live apart and any such agreement shall be valid and enforceable; but the court may, notwithstanding any provisions to the contrary in the agreement, vary or set aside the agreement or any of the provisions thereof if it is satisfied that since it was made, there has been a material change of circumstances.

Rights of widows. 49. No law or custom shall operate so as to restrict the freedom of a widow to reside wherever she pleases or to marry a man of her choice.

PART V—MISCELLANEOUS RIGHTS OF ACTION

Promise to marry not enforceable in law. 50. (1). Except as otherwise expressly provided in this section—

- (a) a promise between two persons to marry one another shall not have effect as a contract giving rise to legal rights; and
- (b) no action shall lie for breach of a promise between two persons to marry each other.

(2) Notwithstanding subsection (1), damages are recoverable by either party if—

- (a) the loss was incurred prior to a breach of promise by the other party; and
- (b) either party was of, or over the age of eighteen years.

(3) A party to a promise referred to in subsection (1) who makes any gift of property to the other party to the promise on the express or implied condition that it shall be returned if the promise is terminated shall not be prevented from recovering that property by reason only of his or her having terminated the agreement.

(4) No action shall lie under this section unless commenced within one year after the termination of the promise.

PART VI—MARITAL DISPUTES AND MATRIMONIAL PROCEEDINGS

General Principles

General principles 51. (1) A court or conciliatory body as may be established, in exercising functions under this Act, shall have regard to the following general principles—

- (a) that the institutions of marriage and the family are to be supported;
- (b) that the parties to a marriage which may have broken down are to be encouraged to take all practicable steps, whether by marriage counselling or otherwise, to save the marriage;
- (c) that a marriage which has irretrievably broken down and is being brought to an end should be brought to an end with minimum distress to the parties and to the children affected and without costs being unreasonably incurred in connection with the procedures to be followed in bringing the marriage to an end;

(d) that any risk to one of the parties to a marriage, and to any children, of violence from the other party should, so far as reasonably practicable, be removed or diminished.

(2) The Cabinet Secretary shall make regulations for the implementation of this section.

Jurisdiction and Procedure in Matrimonial Causes.

Jurisdiction of courts. 52. Original jurisdiction in matrimonial proceedings under this Act shall be vested—
(a) in the case of a marriage contracted in Islamic form, jurisdiction shall be in the Kadhi's courts, or if both parties agree, in the Resident Magistrates Court of the First Class; and
(b) in all other cases in the Resident Magistrate's Court of the First Class..

Right to invoke jurisdiction. 53. (1) Subject to subsection (2), a person domiciled or ordinarily resident in Kenya may petition the court for a declaratory decree under any of the provisions of this Act.
(2) A person who was married or purportedly married in Kenya and is resident in Kenya may petition the court for a declaratory decree as to the validity of the marriage.
(3) Subject to sections 70, 71 and 72, a person who is domiciled in Kenya or has been ordinarily resident in Kenya for at least two years immediately preceding the date of filing the petition may petition to the court for a decree of annulment, divorce or separation.
(4) Subject to this section, a person who is domiciled in Kenya or who, at the time of the application is ordinarily resident in Kenya may apply to the court for maintenance or other matrimonial relief.

Forms of proceedings. 54. (1) Proceedings for a declaratory decree or for a decree of annulment, separation or divorce shall be instituted by petition.
(2) An application for maintenance or other matrimonial relief shall, unless included in a petition for a declaratory decree or for annulment, separation or divorce, be made by summons.

Petitions and 55. (1). The respondent to a petition may include in answer to the petition a cross

- answers. prayer for matrimonial relief and, subject to section 76, the court may grant relief on the cross prayer as it might have granted had a petition for that relief been filed.
- (2) A petition shall ordinarily be heard in open court but the court may order that the public be excluded from the whole or any part of the hearing if it is satisfied that it is the interests of justice so to do.
- (3) Where a petition for divorce or for judicial separation or an answer to a petition alleges adultery, every alleged adulterer shall, unless otherwise directed by the court, be made a party to the proceedings.
- (4) A person made a party to proceedings in pursuance of subsection (3) may enter an appearance and file an answer or such other pleading as may be appropriate and be entitled to be heard in respect of all questions relating to the adultery alleged against him or her.
- (5) Where there is cross prayer for matrimonial relief, the court may grant decrees in favour of both of the petitioner and of the respondent.
- Dismissal of petition for deception or non disclosure. 56. The court may dismiss matrimonial proceedings or make any other order it deems fit, including an order as to costs, if it is satisfied that either party has attempted to deceive the court in any material respect or has willfully failed to make a full disclosure of all relevant facts.
- Recognition of decrees of foreign courts. 57. Where a court of competent jurisdiction in a foreign country has granted a decree in matrimonial proceedings whether arising out of a marriage contract in Kenya or elsewhere, that decree shall be recognized as effective for all purposes of the law of Kenya—
- (a) if either party was domiciled in that country or had been ordinarily resident there for at least two years immediately preceding the date of institution of those proceedings;
- (b) if, being a decree of annulment, divorce or separation, it has been declared to be effective by a country of domicile of the parties or either of them.
- Recognition of foreign divorces. 58. A divorce, otherwise than by decree of a court, in a foreign country, shall be recognized as effective for all purposes of the law of Kenya if—
- (a) it was effective according to the law of the country of domicile of each of the parties at the time of the divorce; or
- (b) it has been declared to be effective by a court of competent jurisdiction in the country of domicile of the parties of either of them.

Declaratory decrees.

59. (1) In proceedings under this Part the court may, on the petition of any interested person, grant a declaratory decree, with or without consequential relief and those proceedings shall not be open to objection on the ground merely that a declaratory decree is sought or that no consequential relief is claimed.

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of subsection (1), the court may—

- (a) on the petition of any person who was party to a ceremony purporting to be a marriage, whether the ceremony took place in Kenya or in a foreign country grant a decree declaring the ceremony to have been a valid marriage for the purposes of the law of Kenya; or
- (b) on the petition of any person who desires to establish that he or she or either of his or her parents or, as the case may be, the grandparents of that person were lawfully married grant a decree declaring that the person or either of his or her parents, or as the case may be the grandparents of that person were lawfully married; or
- (c) on the petition of any person who claims that his or her marriage was determined under Islamic or customary law prior to the commencement of this Act, grant a decree declaring that the marriage was or was not so determined; or
- (d) on the petition of any person who claims that his or her marriage has been annulled or dissolved under the law of any foreign country, grant a decree declaring that, for the purpose of the law of Kenya, the marriage was or was not so determined; or
- (e) on the petition of any person who can show reasonable grounds for supposing that his or her spouse is dead, grant a decree declaring that such spouse is presumed to be dead, or dismiss the petition.

(3) In proceedings pursuant to paragraph (e) of subsection (2) there shall be a rebuttable presumption that a spouse is dead if that spouse has been continuously absent for a period of not less than seven years and either he or she has not been seen or heard of during that period by persons who might be expected to have seen or heard of him or her had he or she been alive or there is good reason to believe that he or she is dead.

Appeals and enforcement.

60. All decrees orders made by the court in proceedings under this Act shall be enforced and may be appealed from, as if they were decrees orders made by the court in exercise of its civil jurisdiction.

Annulment, Separation and Divorce

Annulment of voidable marriages.

61. (1) The court may grant a decree of annulment in respect of a marriage which is voidable under the provisions of section 13.

(2) Where the petition alleges that at the date of the marriage the respondent was subject to recurrent attacks of insanity or was pregnant by or impregnated some person other than the petitioner or a former husband of hers or wife of his, the court shall not grant a decree unless it is satisfied that—

- (a) the petition was filed within one year of the date of the marriage; and;
- (b) at the date of the marriage the petitioner was ignorant of the facts alleged; and
- (c) marital intercourse has not taken place with the consent of the petitioner since discovery by the petitioner of those facts.

Parties to a petition for annulment.

62. (1) Subject to subsection (2), a petition for annulment may be presented only by one of the parties, but where the petition alleges facts of which only one party was ignorant at the date of that marriage, it may be presented only by that party, and where the petitioner alleges the willful refusal of one party to consummate the marriage it may not be presented by the party against whom the allegation is made.

(2) A petition for annulment which alleges that one of the parties was below the minimum age for marriage may be presented by the parent or guardian of that party.

Effect of decree of annulment.

63. Subject to this Act, the parties to a marriage which has been annulled by decree absolute of the court shall be deemed never to have been married but a decree of annulment shall not—

- (a) render lawful anything which was done unlawfully during the marriage or render unlawful anything which was done lawfully during the marriage;
- (b) affect the competence or compellability of either of the parties as a witness in respect of anything done or omitted to be done, or any privilege in respect of communications between them, during the marriage; or
- (c) relieve either party of any debt properly incurred on behalf of the other during the marriage.

Right to petition for separation or divorce. 64. Subject to section 58, 70 and 71, a married person, however his or her marriage was contracted may petition the court for a decree of separation or divorce on the ground that the marriage has irretrievably broken down.

Restrictions on petitions for divorce. 65. (1) No person shall, without the leave of the court, petition for divorce before the expiry of a period of three years from the date of the marriage which it is sought to dissolve.

(2) Leave shall not be granted to file a petition for divorce within three years of marriage unless on petition sought to be filed is on grounds of exceptional hardship, including domestic violence being suffered by the petitioner or of exceptional depravity on the part of the respondent; and the court shall, before determining whether or not to grant leave, have regard to the interests of any children of the marriage and to the question whether a reasonable probability of reconciliation between the parties during that period exists.

(3) An application for leave under this section may be made notwithstanding the fact that a reference to a conciliatory body under section 71 has not been made.

Requirement of prior reference to a conciliatory body. 66. (1) A court before which a petition for divorce is presented may require the party presenting the petition to establish that efforts have been made to reconcile the parties before religious leaders, counselors, or other person or conciliatory body and that such effort have failed to reconcile the parties.

(2) Subsection (1) shall not apply—

- (a) where the petitioner does not know the whereabouts of a spouse against whom desertion is alleged; or
- (b) where the respondent resides outside Kenya and is unlikely to enter the jurisdiction within six months after the date of the petition; or
- (c) where the respondent has been requested to appear before a conciliatory body and has willfully failed to attend; or
- (d) where the respondent is serving a sentence of imprisonment expressed

- to be for a term of five years or more; or
- (e) where the petitioner alleges that the respondent is suffering from incurable mental illness; or
- (f) where the court is satisfied that reference to a conciliatory body is impracticable; or
- (g) where the court has given leave under section 70.

(3) A matrimonial dispute may be referred to a conciliatory process agreed between the parties.

(4) The hearing of proceedings for divorce may be adjourned for any period not exceeding six months which the court may think fit for further inquiries or further attempts at reconciliation to be made.

Contents of petition for separation or divorce.

67. (1) A petition for a decree of separation or for divorce shall contain—

- (a) particulars of the marriage between the parties and the names, age and sex of any child of either party under the age of eighteen years;
- (b) a statement of the full names of the parties the present address and occupation (if known) of the parties and of the last address at which the parties resided together;
- (c) particulars of the facts giving the court jurisdiction;
- (d) particulars of any previous matrimonial proceedings between the parties including any similar proceedings in a foreign court;
- (e) particulars of the principal allegations which it will be sought to prove as evidence of the breakdown of the marriage;
- (f) particulars of the terms of any agreement or arrangement made regarding maintenance or the division of any assets acquired through the joint efforts of the parties or, where no agreement or arrangement has been reached, the petitioner's proposals in that regard;
- (g) a statement of the reliefs sought; and
- (h) such other particulars as may be prescribed.

(2) There shall be filed with every petition for a decree of separation or for divorce an affidavit verifying the facts of which the deponent has personal knowledge and deponing as to his or her belief in the truth of the other facts alleged in the petition.

(3) Where a petition alleges adultery against a person who has died before the date of presentation of the petition, the affidavit shall include proof of the death of the person by reference to a death certificate exhibited thereto or by reference to any other evidence which is available.

Contents of petition for annulment.

68. (1) A petition for a decree of annulment shall contain the particulars and statements set out in paragraphs section 72 (1) together with particulars of the principal allegations which it will be sought to prove as evidence that, and particulars of the provision or provisions of section 13 upon which, a decree of annulment should be granted.

(2) There shall be filed with every petition for a decree of annulment an affidavit verifying the facts of which the deponent has personal knowledge and deponing as to his or her belief in the truth of other facts alleged in the petition.

Evidence of irretrievable breakdown of marriage.

69. (1) Before deciding whether or not a marriage has irretrievably broken down, the court shall have regard to all relevant evidence regarding the conduct and circumstances of the parties, and may refuse to grant a decree where a petition is founded exclusively on the petitioner's own wrong doing.

(2) Any one or more of the following matters may be evidence that a marriage has irretrievably broken down—

- (a) one or more acts of adultery committed by either spouse; or
- (b) cruelty, whether mental or physical, inflicted by either spouse on the other or on the children, if any, of the marriage or
- (c) willful neglect by either spouse for at least two years immediately preceding the date of presentation of the petition; or
- (d) separation, whether voluntary or by decree of the court, where it has continued for at least two years immediately preceding the date of filing of the petition; or
- (e) desertion by either spouse for at least two years immediately preceding the date of presentation of the petition; or
- (f) a sentence of imprisonment of the respondent expressed to be for life or for a term of seven years or more, regard being had both to the length of the sentence and to the nature of the offence for which it was imposed; or
- (g) insanity of the respondent, where two doctors, at least one of whom is qualified or experienced in psychiatry, have certified that the insanity is

- incurable or that recovery is improbable during the life time of the respondent in the light of existing medical knowledge; or
- (h) change of faith by the respondent, where both spouses followed the same faith at the time of the marriage and where, according to that faith, the change dissolves or is a ground for the dissolution of marriage.
- (i) Any other ground as may be deemed appropriate under any marriage system.

Evidence in support of petition for divorce may be the same for the previous separation.

70. When hearing a petition for divorce the court may admit and found its decision, wholly or partly, on evidence received from the petitioner which is substantially the same as that on which a decree of separation has previously been granted.

Power of court to grant decree of separation or divorce.

71. (1) At the conclusion of the hearing of a petition or cross petition for a decree of separation or for divorce, the court may, if satisfied that the marriage has irretrievably broken down, grant a decree of separation or divorce accordingly.

(2) If the court is not satisfied as required by subsection (1) it may dismiss the petition or cross petition, as the case may be, or both.

(3) Whenever a decree of separation or for divorce is granted or refused the court shall, by order, make provision for the maintenance and custody of any children of the parties, but the order, whether in respect of maintenance or custody or both, may be expressed to be of only temporary effect pending a final order to be made after the conclusion of specified further inquiries as to the most satisfactory arrangements that can be made in that regard.

Effect of decree of separation.

72. A decree of separation shall relieve the parties of any obligation to cohabit or right to consortium and, except so far as the decree or other order of the court otherwise provides, of the duty to maintain each other, but shall not dissolve their marriage.

Power of court to rescind or vary decrees of separation.

73. (1) The court shall rescind a decree of separation on the application of either or both of the parties if both parties have consented thereto.

(2) The court may rescind a decree of separation on the application of either party where it is satisfied that the decree was obtained as the result of misrepresentation or mistake of fact.

(3) Subject to rules of court, the terms of a decree of separation may be varied on the application of both or either of the parties where there has been any material change of circumstances.

Effect of decree of divorce etc.

74. (1) A decree of divorce shall dissolve the marriage to which it relates.

(2) A decree declaring that a party is presumed to be dead shall, even if that party is not in fact dead, dissolve the marriage to which it relates.

(3) Subject to subsection (2) of this section and section 101, a declaratory decree in proceedings under this Act shall be conclusive and binding upon all persons who were parties to or were served with notice of those proceedings and all persons claiming under them.

Division of Assets as Between spouse, Maintenance and Other Reliefs

Power of court to order division of matrimonial assets.

75. Subject to any law on matrimonial property, a court, when or after granting a decree of annulment, divorce or separation, may order a division of matrimonial property between the parties, or may order the sale of such matrimonial property any of those assets and a division between the parties of the proceeds of the sale.

Maintenance.

76. (1) The court may order a person to pay maintenance to his or her spouse or former spouse—

(a) if the person has refused or neglected to provide for the spouse as required by this Act;

(b) if the person has deserted his or her spouse, for as long as the desertion continues;

(c) during the course of any matrimonial proceedings;

(d) when granting or subsequent to the grant of a decree of separation or divorce;

or

(e) if, after a decree of presumption of death, the spouse is found to be alive.

(2) The power to order maintenance in the cases referred to in paragraphs (d) and (e) subsection (1) may be exercised where the decree was granted by a foreign court if it is recognized as effective under this Act, and for this purpose a declaratory decree recognizing as effective a divorce obtaining otherwise than by a decree of a court shall be deemed to be a decree of divorce.

Assessment of maintenance.	77. The amount of any maintenance ordered by the court to be paid by one spouse to the other shall ordinarily be assessed according to the needs of the parties, but for this purpose regard shall be paid also to— <ul style="list-style-type: none">(a) the degree of responsibility which the court may apportion to either party for the breakdown of the marriage;(b) the capacity and ability of either party to earn a living.
Security for maintenance of a spouse.	78. The court may when awarding maintenance for the benefit of a spouse, order the person liable to pay maintenance to provide security for the payment of the maintenance.
Compounding of maintenance.	79. An agreement for the payment, in money or other property, or a capital sum in settlement of all future claims to maintenance of a spouse shall not be effective until it has been approved, with or without conditions, by the court, but when so approved it shall be a good defence to any further claim for maintenance.
Duration of orders for maintenance.	80. Except where an order for maintenance of a spouse is expressed to be for any shorter period or where any such order has revoked and subject to section 95, the order shall expire— <ul style="list-style-type: none">(a) if the maintenance was unsecured, on the death of the husband or wife; or(b) if the maintenance was secured, on the death of the spouse in whose favour it was made; or(c) where the person being maintained is subsequently able to support himself or herself; or
Right to maintenance to cease on remarriage.	81. (1) An order of the court providing for maintenance of a spouse shall cease to have effect upon the marriage of that spouse. (2) The right of a divorced spouse to receive maintenance from a former spouse under an agreement shall cease on remarriage of the divorced spouse, unless the agreement otherwise provides.
Revocation or variation of order for	82.(1) The court may revoke or vary a subsisting order for maintenance of any kind, whether secured or unsecured, if it is satisfied that the order was based or obtained as maintenance. the result of any misrepresentation or mistake of fact or that there has been a material change of circumstances since the order was made.

(2) Subject to section 93, the court may vary the terms of an agreement as to maintenance between spouses wherever made if satisfied that there has been a material change of circumstances since the agreement was made notwithstanding any provision to the contrary contained therein.

Maintenance payable under order of court to be inalienable. 83. Maintenance payable to a person under an order of the court shall not be assigned or transferred or liable to be attached, sequestrated or levied upon for, or in respect of, any debt or claim.

Recovery of arrears of maintenance. 84. (1) Notwithstanding any other period of limitation prescribed by the Limitation of Actions Act, no installment of maintenance shall be recoverable in proceedings instituted after a period of three years from the date upon which the installment accrued due.

Cap 22

(2) Subject to subsection (1), arrears of unsecured maintenance, whether payable by agreement under an order of the court, shall be a civil debt recoverable summarily or, where they accrued due before the making of a receiving order against the party in default, shall be provable in subsequent bankruptcy proceedings and where they accrued due before death, shall be a debt from the estate of the deceased.

(3) Subject to subsection (1) arrears of unsecured maintenance which accrued due before the death of the person entitled shall be a civil debt recoverable summarily by the legal personal representative of that person.

Fraudulent dispositions. 85. (1) Where—
(a) matrimonial proceedings are pending; or
(b) an order under section 80 has been made but not complied with; or
(c) an order under this Act for maintenance has been made and has not been rescinded; or
(d) maintenance is payable under an agreement for the benefit of a spouse or former spouse or child, the court may, if it is satisfied that a disposition of property has been made by the spouse or former spouse of the person by or on whose behalf the application is made, within the preceding three years, with the object on the part of the person making the disposition of reducing the means to pay maintenance or of depriving a spouse of any rights in relation to that property , or is intended to be made with any such object , on application , set aside the disposition or grant an injunction prohibiting that disposition , as the case may be

(2) In this section, “disposition” includes a sale gift , lease , mortgage or other transaction whereby ownership or possession of the property is transferred or encumbered but does not include a disposition made from money or monies worth to or in favour of a person acting in good faith and in ignorance of the object for which the disposition is made

Other relief.

86. (1) The court may order a party to refrain from molesting a spouse or former spouse.

2) No proceedings may be brought to compel one spouse to cohabit with the other, but a spouse who alleges that he or she has been deserted may refer the matter to a conciliatory body.

Custody and Maintenance of Children

Orders concerning children.

87. (1) Subject to the Children Act, the court may make such orders concerning or affecting a child as it thinks fit, taking into account the best interests of the child and may subsequently order, discharge or vary or suspend the whole or any provision thereof.

(2) An order under subsection (1) may be made at any time during the course of, or after the conclusion of matrimonial proceedings on the application of either of the parents of a child.

Declaration of unfitness.

88. On or after the pronouncement of a decree of divorce or separation the court may on application of either the father or mother, by order , declare either parent to be a person unfit to have the custody of any one or more children of the marriage, and the parent so declared to be unfit shall not , unless the order has been rescinded , be entitled to the custody of any such child , whether on the death of the other parent or otherwise unless the court so directs

Duration of orders.

89. (1) No order in respect of the periodical payment of money towards the maintenance of the child or of the custody of a child shall except in relation to any arrears due under it continue in force after the date when the child to whom it relates attains the age of eighteen years unless the court, for reasons to be recorded in writing, so directs.

(2) No order for the custody or the periodical payment of money towards the maintenance of a child shall unless the court otherwise orders be enforceable and no liability thereunder shall arise so long as the parents of the child are residing together and the order shall cease to have effect if for any period of not less than three months after it is made the parents continuously reside together: but the court may notwithstanding that the parents are residing together at the date of the order, order that the father or mother of the child shall pay to the other parent or guardian such periodical sum towards the maintenance of the child as it considers reasonable

(3) No order made under this Act during the course of matrimonial proceedings, and concerning or affecting a child the marriage of whose parents are the subject of these proceedings, shall continue in force after the date of pronouncement of a decree or the dismissal of the proceedings unless the court when or before, pronouncing the decree of dismissing the proceeding declares the order to be final or adjourns consideration of arrangement with regard to the welfare of the child to chambers.
